Preliminaries to the Campaign for Greater College Are Now Well Under Way.

Preliminaries to the campaign for "Greater Kendall College" are getting well under way. Directors of the institution are receiving many favorable reports as to the preparation being made for the campaign in various parts of the state.

Kendall's recent football victory over the University of Oklahoma has been of tremendous value in advertising the college throughout the southwest. One Oklahoma City man has become such an ardent Kendall enthusiast that he has promised to contribute $25,000 to the campaign fund. Citizens of Tulsa will be asked to donate $250,000 to the college and the directors expect to raise $100,000 by contributions of the Presbyterian churches in Oklahoma. Easterners who take an active interest in educational affairs have promised to donate $1 for every $3 raised in Oklahoma for Kendall. If $250,000 is raised in this section of the country the eastern parties will supply the $150,000 to make the $500,000 which is desired to improve the institution.

TULSA HOTEL MAN ACQUIRES THE BALTIMORE city in which the Baltimore is located. Del. J. Dean, born of a family of hotelkeepers, in 1899 after a wide experience was prevailed upon by Bernard Carrigan to operate the 110-room Baltimore erected that year. So successful did the new hotel prove that in a few years it became necessary to enlarge it with additions giving a total capacity of five hundred rooms.

After taking a high position in everything to the advantage of Kansas City and the southwest, Del. J. Dean passed away in January, 1911, leaving the hotel entirely in the hands of his son Frank, then 23 years old.

Young Dean had spent all his life in hotels and had by actual experience become familiar with every department. Thus, although he was the youngest proprietor of a hotel of equal importance he not only operated the Baltimore well, but increased his fortune all the time operating the hotel on the highest plane.

Mr. Dean had found time to interest himself in other money ventures and recently with J. R. Crewe, Jr., secured the control of the Black Transfer company. He has been chairman and a prominent member of the convention and publicity committee of the Commercial club and also active in the Kansas City Hotelkeepers association and the Missouri-Kansas-Oklahoma Hotel Men's association. Mr. Dean is now having erected in the Country club district an expensive house which will be his future home.

Robinson's Rise Steady. W. N. Robinson's rise in the hotel world has been rapid and spectacular to the public at large, but to those who know it was always conservative and profitable. His first hotel of importance was the Robinson at Tulsa, which later gave way to the fine, modern 300-room Hotel Tulsa, the site, building and operating company, valued at $150,000, which he now owns. This hotel, because of the oil boom and the steady growth of Tulsa, has done perhaps the largest business of any hotel located in a town the size of Tulsa. So successful was Mr. Robinson at Tulsa that he went to Kansas City and purchased the realty and operating company of the Parkway hotel, erected the Grille apartments and purchased the Hotel Kinner, which latter he disposed of last week to Walter S. M.

The tremendous success which the new Baltimore proprietor has made in the hotel business has not affected his demeanor, which is frank and open. He has twice been president of the Missouri-Kansas-Oklahoma Hotel Men's association and has shown that he is as much interested in the problems of the small hotel operators. He is now the first vice-president of the National Hotel Protective association.

In taking charge of the Baltimore, Mr. Robinson will institute no radical changes. The same employees will be retained and the general guest will not be aware that a change has been made.

In the past two years $200,000 has been spent in keeping the Baltimore resident and $50,000 more will be spent on furnishings and improvements, Mr. Robinson says.

The deal was consummated by Barney L. Alisky, who represented both interests.

TELLS JURY OF DEATH STRUGGLE

"The conversation when one of the men said 'I understand you lectured here last night. You're not going to lecture tonight. You're going to leave town.'"

"Black replied, 'I will lecture tonight and I will not leave town.' Then Rogers said, 'I'll be damned if you do' and seized Black. Black tried to get up and get his gun, but was pinned and failed. A scuffle followed."

Hall said that he saw every man making a motion toward his right hip pocket. A shot was fired from behind Black, he testified. He sprang back to the bathroom for safety, pulling his gun as he jumped. He fired at Rogers' head above Black's shoulder, he said. Then Black, Rogers and Copeland, who were together, separated. Rogers fell and Black staggered. The girl, Sadie Buckley, caught the lecturer, who rallied and ran toward Hall. Hall said Black pulled his gun, turned and then fell across Rogers' body.

When Copeland drew his gun and snapped it twice at me," continued Hall, "it missed fire. The girl ran in front of me. I pointed up to miss her and my gun jammed. When I got it fixed the room was cleared."

He stuck to his statement through the cross-examination which followed immediately. In the main, his story remained the same.

Saw Copeland's Gun. Hall said the first time he saw a gun in Copeland's hand was when Copeland turned on him. Only one shot had been fired, he said, when he shot at Rogers. He refused to testify that Copeland, who received three wounds, was shot by him.

Attorney Stubbs questioned him closely regarding the actions of Black, Rogers and Copeland during the scuffle. Hall insisted that Black, who was seated when the struggle began, did not try to get up until Rogers grasped him.

"Isn't it a fact that Black tried to get his pistol and Rogers grabbed him?" asked Mr. Stubbs.

"No," said Hall.

Mr. Stubbs led the witness through the story of his association with Black. He said that they met in Minneapolis in November, 1914, and that he joined the lecturer to take care of the business end of his tour.

He said they were in Minnesota and Arkansas before going to Marshall, the scene of the killing.

Mr. Stubbs produced a circular which was identified as having been distributed in Marshall advertising three lectures to be given by Black.

"Did you cause this to be distributed?" he asked Hall.

"I did."

The circular was read to the jury and admitted as evidence. It was headed "The Rotteness of Romanism in American Politics." Black was advertised as an ex-priest who would lecture on successive nights, beginning February 2, 1915, on these subjects: "Effects of the Confession Box."

"Convent Life." "Is the Oath of the Knights of Columbus True?"

On the back of the circular was printed matter which was asserted to be a reproduction from the fourth degree oath of the Knights of Columbus.

It declared the intention of the person taking the oath to wage relentless warfare against all heretics, especially protestants and Masons and extirpate them, "hanging, strangling and burning them alive" as directed.

"Do you know if this matter, which you distributed is the real obligation of the Knights of Columbus?" asked Mr. Stubbs.

"I do not," said Hall.

LYRIC TODAY

Ninth Episode of the Glorious Serial of the Season

"Liberty"

"A DAUGHTER OF MARS."

The last episode ended with Liberty holding the whole band of rebels at bay with the rifle she had stolen from her guard. After Bob's hands have been untied, he takes the gun. Just at this time the rangers that Pedro has met put in their appearance. There is great excitement and in the confusion Liberty and Pedro escape, but Bob and his men are quickly surrounded and besieged on a little peak in the desert.

Liberty and Pedro are enabled to escape by means of an aeroplane that comes along at that moment.

Then Lopez, as he has found out that the troops have been ordered to withdraw, sends orders to all the bands that it is time for another raid and names the meeting place. The couriers set out post-haste to ride the rounds and spread the word.

All the while Bob and his men are held prisoners in the little natural fort and are surrounded on all sides by the Mexicans. They think that Liberty and Pedro have been killed. But the aeroplane that was carrying Liberty and her faithful servant to safety breaks down, and they are once more thrown into the hands of the bandits.
